

The big storm

One day a big storm came from a very little place called Lilliput. The storm was very strong. Lilliput was a small place with small people living in it. During the storm 90% of Lilliput, including people, flew away and landed in the neighbour country, England, where big people lived, I mean ordinary people.

- I found those little people on the palms of my favourite beach. They were so hungry and thirsty that they were about to die. At first I thought they were animals, but then I remembered that long time ago my grandfather had told me he had seen some small creatures and they were really good at doing house duties. So I immediately realized they were those small creatures.

I took them to my house to eat and drink. Next, I took them to the slave room, and an old man took the Lilliputians and put them into a small box. They started yelling, but nobody heard them. The next day, the old man opened the box and the little creatures were there sleeping and he had to wake them up and put them in a small bench with small chains. They started thinking and they thought they were in a slave room, but then they realized that they were there. Lots of people went to buy them. One of them was taken to an old woman's house and she had a cat that wanted to eat him. Other two went to a big family that treated them like slaves and they were all day long washing the dishes. And the other ones were all with rich families fanning their princesses. The only way to communicate was with sounds but they were so far from each other that they couldn't hear what the other one said.

While all this was happening I wasn't so relaxed because I felt something wasn't okay. I went to the slave room and they told me all the Lilliputians had been sold. I checked the list where it said who had bought them and their address. So I went to all those houses and bought all the slaves. Most of them had lash marks. They were badly injured.

I took them to the doctor and they were better... The next day I was very stressed, but this time because of something good. I was doing the adoption procedures. Yes! So crazy, right? After all this suffering, in this big and strange city for them. The ones that started working as slaves ended up being my children. Now we are a big family and we usually go to Lilliput and every time we go there, we come back with more little people. Yes! At first, we were two Lilliputians but now we're ten! and I called them: Henry, Amy, Mallory, Jack, Peter, Ashley, Lou, Ty, Aaa, Mmm. Well, they are too many! I can't remember all those names!

At first I felt really bad because I realized I was doing something horrible. But then I felt very happy because I had a big and beautiful family. Our first trip together as a family was to Lilliput and we really enjoyed it.

I really liked this story project, because it's about a story that we know and we could change it as we wanted. Also I liked the idea of doing it in the drive because it is easier and funnier.
